

Over 13,000 abortions take place in Scotland each year.

What do you think? Do you think that's just fine? If you do, you really need to be sure.

That's because many people believe that each abortion involves the killing of an innocent human. 13,000 a year, killed by the state, amounts to an outrage of monumental proportions – if they are right.

So, if you're going to accept ongoing mass abortion in Scotland, you really need to be sure of your ground. Why is it that you don't think that the unborn child matters?

She's tiny

Human value depends on size? Really? So a huge man is more valuable than a slight woman, who is in turn more valuable than an infant?

He doesn't look like a baby

Human value depends on appearance? Really? Is a seriously deformed child of less value because of their appearance – because they look "less like a person"?

Fetus at 12 weeks in the womb

She's inside the mother

Human value depends on location? Really? What's of infinite value in one place has no value when it's somewhere else? How can a child's value change so dramatically in a journey of about 30cm?

He couldn't survive on his own

Human value depends on independence? Really? How about a new born baby? The elderly and infirm? Don't we usually assume a special responsibility to care for the vulnerable?

She's not conscious

Human value depends on consciousness? Really? Would it be OK to kill you while you are asleep?

He can't do anything

Human value depends on abilities? Really? So the cleverer or more athletic you are, the more your life matters? The more restricted a person's abilities, the less valuable their life is?

She's not wanted

Human value depends on people's opinion? Really? If a society decides that a type of person is unwanted, then they become worthless? Do the lives of children born into rejection and neglect have no value?

Are you really sure? Or are you not facing up to the issue?

The message from politicians, the media and entertainers is usually that abortion is just fine.

But are they right?

Or are we living with a colossal moral blind spot?

Our Pro-Life Policy

Life is precious. All human life has intrinsic worth and the measure of a civilised society is how we treat those who are most vulnerable.

We affirm the value of human life in the womb. Abortion as a means of birth control is morally unjustifiable. Ultimately, we would like to see the law reflect this, but immediate steps could include offering independent counselling to those considering an abortion, reducing the current 24 week limit for abortions and preventing abortion on grounds of disability after 24 weeks. We would ensure that young people in school are presented with the facts about abortion and the possible emotional consequences.

We would invest in support for women facing unwanted pregnancy, helping them to establish a strong network of support and encouraging alternatives such as fostering or adoption.

Currently, no Holyrood or UK party is willing to start the debate by standing up to the pro-abortion consensus

The Greens, Labour and Lib Dems in Scotland are pushing for the full decriminalisation of abortion. This entails abortion on demand up to full term. The SNP government funds organisations that campaign for this as well. The Conservatives have no policy, but they are certainly not a pro-life party and votes for them will not defend the lives of the unborn.

The Scottish Family Party stands up for the unborn and is unashamedly pro-life.

Filling the Void in Scottish Politics

The fundamental values that underpin our society are being eroded. We present a better vision for the future of Scotland.

We offer fresh perspectives that could help solve deeply ingrained problems, and policies that could enable people of all ages to flourish as they pursue their path through life.

Our foundational philosophy is quite distinct from the current Holyrood parties.

We seek to bring common sense, wisdom, justice, truth, decency, integrity and virtue into political debate and, ultimately, into the Scottish Parliament.

Please join us in making our dream a reality. You can become a member through our website. We'd value your support and we'd love to meet you.
